

Sophie Howe Future Generations Commissioner

Professionally
Speaking
2017

Notes by Cully Education

The future is impossible to predict but there are clues if you chose to look. What will the changes in technology mean for our children?

We need to consider the roles that robots cannot replace. Children have been missing out on emotional literacy, creativity and empathy.

Children need to be learning the skills of problem-solving, critical thinking and collaboration.

How are we bridging the gap for the skills employers need?

How are we inspiring our most talented graduates to stay in Wales?

We all need to take responsibility to drive change.